

Great Artist and Mother

Germany Getting Tired?
By Arthur Brisbane

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 22.—On Christmas Eve, at 9:30 Eastern Standard Time, on the coast-to-coast radio network of the National Broadcasting Company, will be heard the distinguished artist, Madame Schumann-Heink, singing one of the most beautiful Christmas songs ever written, "Silent Night, Holy Night," "Silent Night, Holy Night."

This inspiring pleasure you will owe to Mr. M. H. Appleworth, president of National Broadcasting Co., who contributes the song to the general Christmas happiness.

All women, mothers especially, are interested in Madame Schumann-Heink, a very great artist, not only because of her beautiful voice that has made her one of the world's greatest artists, but because she is the mother of eight children, and is content with that service to the world, has adopted a ninth child to care for it for her.

Thank to the radio miracle, Madame Schumann-Heink will be heard in Germany in the home where she was born, and throughout all Europe.

This writer has the honor of presenting Madame Schumann-Heink to her radio audience.

Florida having had her troubles before the 1929 troubles of others, begins to take a cheerful view of conditions.

Mr. Newt Roney, whose hotel is the greatest in Southern Florida, finds room renting this year, well ahead of last year.

Henry Deberry, man of many interests and many battles, who recently bought the Miami-Biltmore hotel and a great many other things down here, presumably for less than they cost, seems cheerful about it.

He runs auto-gyro flying machines for his guests from one hotel to another and down to his fishing island.

Mr. Roney, of the Roney-Plaza, observing the growth of his own daughter, and her summers in the North, her winters here, and was "at 12 years of age bigger than he," concludes that "the summer and Florida will produce a race of beings six feet and a half."

It is in such a climate that, along the Gulf of Mexico, children grow and up strength in winter time, and fighting against "moon colic" and losing weight.

Yerkes must have observed that California, combining an admirable summer and winter climate, has produced an extraordinary crop of young athletes, Helen Wills, Mary Hard, the tennis court to the young California football giants.

Who will invent a "heart ticker" for business and industry? You have heard about a "tickler" used by Dr. A. H. Ayer, causing hearts that have stopped beating to begin to beat again, and by reanimating the dead. It is well described in "Time."

There is, in the right article of the heart, a tiny electrical machine called the "pacemaker," supplying an electric stimulus (that causes the heart to beat regularly) until death.

That extraordinary little machine—you have one in your own heart—generates an electric current of about one volt. If it fails, your heart stops beating.

Dr. Hyman has invented a gold-plated needle containing in its hollow point a wire carrying exactly the right electric current. When the heart has stopped the needle is pressed through the ribs into the right auricle of the stopped heart.

After six times one of the heart resumes work when the needed stimulus is applied not more than 10 minutes after apparent "death."

If scientific ingenuity can make a "dead" heart resume work, why cannot the business and industrial ingenuity find some way to start the industrial and business heart of this nation?

SOUTH END SAFE IS LOOTED

Safe robbers, who executed their job in the manner of professionalists, made a $200 haul early today in the office of the Greater Boston Distributing Co., 40 Walham St. South End, distributors of magazines and newspapers.

Entrance to the first floor was effected through a rear window which the safe breakers pried open. In the front office they found the safe, three feet by two and a half feet, and pushed it back into a rear room, where they ripped it open and cleaned it out.

The robbery was discovered when Myer J. Reiser of 21 Hartwell St., Dorchester, a member of the company, opened up for business to day. Police made search of the wrecked safe in an endeavor to find fingerprints.

Gun Guard Over Five in Gangster Trial

With heavily armed guards, reinforced by a detail of 12 police from Station 3 in and outside the courtroom, a barricade erected before the door and all spectators barred, five alleged gangsters went on trial before Judge Williams and a jury in Suffolk Superior Court today.

All five are charged with larceny of a pistol and two revolvers and possession of burglar tools.

They are: Fred Fisher, Samuel Kugel, Richard Healy, Sam R. Molinari and Joseph J. Mulder, Jr., all of whom lived at a South End address.

The first witness for the government, George Lannon of Andover, identified four of five men who held up a group of friends at his North Andover camp on November 19. He also identified an automobile and two pistols, taken from the defendants, as his property.

Roosevelt's 'No' Spokes Hoover's Debt Plan

President Drops His Commission, Gives Out Telegrams
Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—President Hoover, having been informed by President-elect Roosevelt that he cannot accept "an apparent joint responsibility" between now and March 4 for war debt and related policies, has abandoned his plan for naming a commission to deal with pressing international problems.

President-elect Roosevelt in correspondence made public today at the White House, declined "to accept any joint responsibility" in the appointment of a commission to require the support of the President-elect Hoover, in effect, that he wished a free hand after he takes office March 4.

The exchange between the President and his successor-to-be consisted of four lengthy telegrams. To them the President attached a brief statement to the press, saying that he declined.

"Gov. Roosevelt considers that it is undesirable for him to be so closely associated with my suggestions for cooperative action on the foreign debt problems outlined in my recent message to Congress. I will respect his wishes."

He was described as feeling that behind the support of the President-elect the commission could not properly be carried on after March 4.

GIRL HELD CAPTIVE BY DOCTOR, SHE SAYS, IN THEFT CASE

FORCED TO SIGN RELEASE FOR SCHOOL FEE

International University Head Is Held With Woman

At the conclusion of a hearing featured by testimony of a young Providence woman that she had been held prisoner in Boston by the defendants, Dr. E. L. D. Turner, 68, formerly a member of the faculty of the College of Physicians and Surgeons here, and Mrs. Ida Granizer, were held today for superior court.

Before Judge Putnam in municipal court, Dr. Turner and Mrs. Granizer were charged with conspiracy, and in an additional complaint the doctor was accused of theft of $800 from Lura Ritter, a Providence business man.

Ritter claims to have paid $800 for the tuition of Miss Antoinette De Michele at the International University, Inc., now defunct, which was formed and headed by Dr. Turner with Mrs. Granizer allegedly playing the role of millionaire banker.

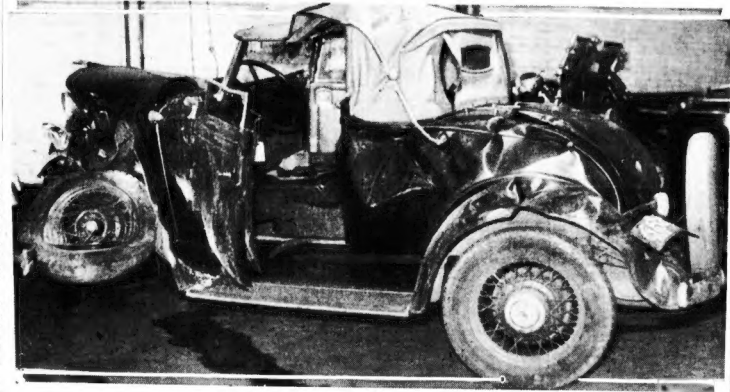

Miss De Michele, who had been a student at the College of Physicians & Surgeons, said she left there because Dr. Turner told her she had to "hang around this faculty" to get her degree. She said she registered as a student of International University, which was located in Concord st., Boston, upon Dr. Turner's representations that students were leaving Harvard and Boston University to study with him.

When International closed and she tried to get her tuition fee back, Dr. Turner and Mrs. Granizer held her a prisoner in a Concord st. building for several hours until she signed a release, she said.

Under cross-examination, Miss De Michele said she had enrolled as a student under the name of Antoinette Ritter to pose as a married woman and avoid the advances of a certain type of insulting student she had found in other classes.

Ritter said he did not contemplate marrying her and advanced the money for her tuition in exchange for stock which she gave him.

Garbed as Man for 36 Years, Accident Bares Her Secret

Hamden, Ct., Dec. 22 (AP)—Officials learned today why William Baldwin Remish, a recluse, has persistently refused to enter the town home. They were told by hospital officials that the recluse, known to them for 36 years as a man, was really a woman.

Believed to be about 80 years old, the woman was taken to a hospital after she was found unconscious in a shock when she lived alone. Officials said she was overcome by fumes of a kerosene lamp and that she was suffering from malnutrition.

Health authorities frequently visited the woman, but she succeeded in keeping the secret of her sex from them. For several years she operated a small print shop.

KIDNAPER OF 2 OFFICERS SLAIN

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP)—William Nydick, 35, a former partner of "Smiling Joe" Fitzkowski, Cleveland's "public enemy" No. 1, was shot down last night when police sought to serve on him a warrant charging robbery.

Nydick was slain by Detective Harry Miller, who was present Monday when Frank Nitti, Al Capone's "enforcer," was shot and seriously wounded.

Miller and Nydick and Fitzkowski kidnapped him and Detective Harry Lang, 35, taking them, their weapons and stars, and ejecting them from their car. Lang is a detective who shot Nitti and was slightly wounded in Monday's

Pope's Address to Go on Air Saturday

Vatican City, Dec. 22 (AP)—Pope Pius today ordered Fr. Gianfranceschi, director of the Vatican radio station, to arrange to broadcast a speech the pontiff will make Saturday shortly after noon, when the cardinals of the curia call to present their Christmas greetings, and also an address by Cardinal Pignatelli Belmonte, head of the Sacred Congregation.

This is the first time the Christmas speech has been broadcast. It will begin about 12:15 p. m. (4:15 a. m. E. S. T.) on a wave length of 364 meters. Translations probably will be broadcast later on 30.25 meters. The Pope is expected to speak in Italian for about 25 minutes.

R.F.C. PUBLICITY PROBE ASKED BY NORRIS

Millions Were Secretly Passed Around to the Favored Few, He Says

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—Investigation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was suggested today in the Senate at the same time that the corporation reported authorized advances of $107,653,587 in November.

Senator Norris made the suggestion after he read a magazine article telling of operations of the corporation. He said the country should know what was being done with the millions of taxpayers' money.

The corporation reports that $71,541,854 loans had been authorized to banks in November and $18,687,273 for relief work in different states.

Norris quoted from the article that "hundreds of millions had been passed around" without Congress knowing who received it.

The article from which the Nebraska senator read that of $254,000,000 loaned to railroads, $150,000,000 went to three groups — "the Morgan, Van Sweringen and Pennsylvania Railroad interests."

Son of Chinatown's Ex-Mayor Kidnaped for Ransom

Win So, 20-year-old Boston-born son of Soo Hoo Wing, former "Mayor of Chinatown," one of the most powerful figures in the On Leong Tong in New England, has been kidnaped in China and held for ransom, according to word received in Boston's Chinese quarter.

The young Chinese went to China a number of months ago with a brother, and they were joined there last October by their father, mother and several American-born daughters.

Soo Hoo Wing, secretary of Boston Chinese Merchants' Association, and for years a court interpreter, left here with the intention of engaging in business in Hong Kong, China, for a year and then to return to Boston.

The son, Win So, according to word reaching here, was kidnaped by Chinese bandits and a ransom of $20,000 Canton dollars (Chinese) or about $21,800 in American money at the present rate of exchange, is demanded by the bandits. According to Wong Poy of the Chinese Merchants' Association, the kidnaping must have happened after Nov. 22, for he received a letter from Soo Hoo Wing, written on that date and stating merely that he had moved from Hong Kong to Canton because of the business depression in the former city.

Greens Bedeck White House for Yule

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—The White House today assumed a Yuletide air of holly and fir trees despite the prospective absence of the President and Mrs. Hoover over the holidays.

Wreaths were placed in the lower windows of the mansion and the row of board trees at the outer edge of the huge pillared porch was wired with multi-colored bolls. Christmas cards addressed to the Chief Executive and first lady were pouring in.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover laid plans to leave the capital tomorrow night for Savannah, Ga., from where they propose to cruise along the Georgia and Florida coast.

HELD IN $19,700 LODGE THEFTS

Providence, Dec. 22 (INB)—Fredrick I. Dana, 45, of Pawtucket, prominent in the Masonic fraternity, today pleaded not guilty in indictments charging embezzlement of $19,700 from two Masonic organizations of which he was treasurer.

Dana had been indicted in two counts, one charging embezzlement of $700 from the trustees of the Ancient Scottish Rite, and the second, $14,000 from the Free Masonic Hall Company.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Day said that over a period of many years a survey showed $75,000 had been taken from the two organizations, but that because of the statute of limitations Dana was indicted on only two counts.

STATE, CHURCH PAY HONOR TO M'CARTHY

State officials, Greater Boston civic leaders and hundreds of religious dignitaries today united in paying a last tribute to John J. McCarthy, widely known businessman and political figure of Somerville.

St. Joseph's Church, Union sq., Somerville, where the services were held, was thronged with friends from every walk of life.

More than 100 priests were grouped in front of the church, and together paid one of the greatest tributes from the church to a layman.

MARCH TO CHURCH

Honorary pallbearers, numbering more than 200 and including many prominent political and civic figures of the Commonwealth, marched in a body to the church from the McCarthy home, 34 Highland ave.

Governor-elect Louis J. Brann of Maine and Secretary of State Fred C. Cook headed the honorary pallbearers. Others were former Gov. Frank G. Allen, Mayor Curley and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

FIRE BELLS TOLL

Pallbearers were Mayor John J. Murphy, City Messenger Charles T. Keane, Joseph J. Hayes, John C. McNally, Henry L. White, former alderman Charles C. Grimes, and John H. Concanon, all of Somerville, and George F. Armstrong of Brookline.

The Somerville fire station tolled their bells as the cortege wound through the streets.

Mass was celebrated by Father Thomas F. McCarthy, a brother and pastor of St. Clement's Church, Somerville. Rev. John J. Sordani, was deacon; Rev. John J. Tolan, sub-deacon, and Rev. Francis Foley, master of ceremonies.

Interment was at St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Needy Children Pray for You Who Give

They prayed for you last night. Thousands of hungry little ones.

They knelt on the cold floor, shivering, at the edge of cold beds. They were asking God, whom they believe to be a great and loving Father, to bless you, and make you very happy on Christmas Day.

They told God how kind you were to think of them and to make it possible for them to receive a Christmas basket.

And they did not mind so much that they were going to bed hungry. They could not get up with hunger for a few more days, because they knew that a big basket of food would be delivered to their homes for Christmas by the generous Goodwillers through the Boston Evening American.

They KNEW they would get a basket? Sure. Didn't they ask you for one? You who have never failed them?

God help them, yes. They were not sure that somehow, they would be taken care of.

And while they are taken care of, PROBABLY HALF OF THEM, and the other half?

THEY'LL WONDER IF GOD FORGOT THEM.

The Christmas Basket Editor appeals to the readers of the Boston Evening American today, three days before Christmas, to please remember the poor, especially the little children.

Frankly and honestly, he states the case.

More than 8000 families, not only in need of food, but actually suffering from the pangs of hunger, ask for baskets.

Contributions on hand will care for less than half that number.

The Boston Evening American has no means of knowing how generous the readers will be, and the Christmas Basket Editor accepts Al's plea that are made in the hope that somehow all can be taken care of.

But this year, unless in these last three days contributions literally flow in, half the applicants will receive no basket, and worse, they will have to wait until the next Christmas Day that it will arrive, not knowing that their hope is empty.

If every person who reads this page would send in FIVE or TEN CENTS, the Editor could guarantee to take care of all.

WILL YOU PLEASE DO IT TODAY?

MORE IF YOU CAN AFFORD IT. BUT AT LEAST TEN CENTS.

Bring in your contributions, or mail it TODAY to the Christmas Basket Editor, 5 Winthrop st., Boston.

O. K. ISLAND FREEDOM PLAN

Washington, Dec. 22 (INS).—Agreement on Philippine independence, by which the islanders can achieve freedom in ten years, was announced today by House and Senate committees.

The Philippine Legislature would call a constitutional convention within one year. If the constitution is approved by the President of the United States, it would be submitted to the Filipino people. If they approved it, the islands would become independent in ten years.

2 New Year's Eves Just Week-End for Some

When are the New Year's Eve celebrations—Saturday night or Sunday night?

The answer, as regards Boston hotels and night clubs, is in most instances, "Both nights." But in a very few cases, notably at the Parker House, where such an illustrious personage as Charles

Curley's Cards

Laid End to End--

Christmas cards from President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, James A. Farley, Democratic presidential campaign manager, from governors of most of the 48 states, from mayors of several hundred communities of the nation, and from a host of personal friends, totaling 7500 in all, have been received to date by Mayor Curley.

It is expected that nearly as many cards will be received this year as were received by the mayor in 1932 when more than 11,500 were delivered to his home in Jamaica way.

Governor Ely was among the many to send personal greetings to the Mayor.

"Mrs. Ely joins me in wishing you a Merry Christmas. Let us all help to make again the real blessing of this holy day."

Ex-Keene Mayor Is Dead in Boston

Ex-Mayor John J. Londer, 45 of Keene, N. H., a widely known Democrat, died today at a Boston hospital. He was a graduate of St. Anselm's College and B. U. Law School, and was prominent in the Elks and Knights of Columbus. He was past district deputy grand exalted ruler of New Hampshire Lodge of Elks, and past exalted ruler of the Keene lodge.

How About Opening Women's Clubs to Men—Just for Fair Play

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

One by one the dens and asylums of men are having to be given up at the stern behest of economic need, feminine aggressiveness and a mistaken idea of what democracy consists in. When the first man fenced off the first cave—to paraphrase Rousseau—and put a sign upon it, "Neanderthal Club—delivery boys and women folk must use the rear entrance," civilization was born.

It is very probable that the great fifth century culture of Athens depended on the fact that the women stayed at home and the men formed their informal open-air clubs in grove and portico where in interminable Socratic dialogue, they settled the problems of the universe. Roman women were made of sterner stuff, however, and went where the Grecian ladies never dared.

From the beginning of the art of drinking, taverns and public were sacred to thirsty men only, save, perhaps, for those females who could not possibly, under the most liberal interpretation, qualify as ladies. The ladies' entrance was a museum. It took prohibition to open up the ladies' entrance and the speakeasy to the kind of woman who used to be called a lady.

Women Still Barred in England

Through all these ages the club, by whatever name it has been called—public, coffee house, or what not—has retained its identity as a male preserve. The determination of the practical judgment, the intensity, the grandeur of the female sex. It has been the one place where man has been able to lock the door bar out the fair and unfair sex, put his feet on the table, and indulge himself in the endless conversations about nothing, which man "rights in when safe among his kind."

Even today the Englishwoman can't get into her husband's club to see if he is there. Even today, I read lately, there is no place for a woman to interview a man in the New York University Club of New York save in the vestibule. That is as it should be. But places of that sort are growing rare. The determination of the American woman to be welcome everywhere that man is, to go everywhere man goes, is breaking down rapidly these ancient, last barriers of protection.

In Boston, I believe, the Harvard Club still stands by the old tradition and does not habitually welcome women. If I am wrong, the change has taken place only lately. The University Club gives women a whole floor of reception rooms and dining rooms where wives and daughters, mothers and aunts may use as their own. They may sign their own checks but not—probably—pay them.

Only a few weeks ago the Boston Art Club was opened to feminine membership. There had been a ladies' dining room before, but that was not important. Now women artists are recognized as artists in their own right, though presumably the only new women members elected will be those who are still painting in the style of 1880, thus being unlikely to throw the present male membership in the shade. But at least the old question of whether women are people, long propounded by Charlotte Stetson Gilman, has been answered by the artists of Boston.

Philadelphia, which has left Boston far in the rear so far as art and music are concerned, the liveliest artistic organization in the city, the Philadelphia Art Alliance, is predominantly a women's organization and membership and interests.

Now the City Club Gives Way

And now the City Club has succumbed. No longer will a lady need her folk's escort in order to be able to dine in Ashburton place. She may, one gathers, come and go as she pleases, once she has been vouchered for.

She may even attend the lectures and entertainments. On Sundays for the old, City Club where there were men, shabby crumpled and inadequate as it was. There at least one did not feel at home.

The immediate reason for all these changes is, of course, economic. The cost of operating a club adequately, in the good club traditions which are the affair of long tradition and experience, is very great. Prices must, traditionally be kept low. The means relatively high annual dues, even with the differentiation common nowadays between junior and senior membership.

A man of family usually does not feel inclined to lay out so much money for a purely idyllic, for a meeting and dining place which men do not use nearly so often as they once did. But if the membership allows the use of the club to the women folk of the family, and even to the children, it becomes less of an indulgence and more of an investment. The amount of money coming into the club is increased. The innovation is usually a successful one.

But one must take into account, too, the old female feeling that a club is a kind of secret and forbidden place which she is bound to get into or lost. At heart the old-fashioned woman always felt that a club was a rather wicked place, full of secrets, of esoteric and occult organs from which she was deliberately excluded lest she spoil the fun. To a great degree women probably still feel the same way about secret societies, their rites and initiations.

How About Opening Doors to Men

Why women should be so determined to get into men's clubs I do not know. Men certainly don't want to get into women's clubs. Indeed, they shy away when they can. The atmosphere of a woman's club at its best is a masculine light, discreet, and unobtrusive atmosphere than that of a man's club. You have to show your membership card and all sort of things.

Nevertheless, whether men want it or not, we hereby and in this column make formal demand that the Women's City Club, the Professional Women's Club, the Women's Club, the Women's College Club, and all the rest, throw open their doors to the men, admit them to the rights and privileges, return the compliment, and lower the bars of this un-American sex discrimination. Then justice will be satisfied and the old-fashioned man, having no longer a place to hang his hat, can take refuge as best he can. The squash courts and swimming pools have been invaded, the speakeasy is now bi-sexual, the bowling alley is crowded with shouting, strong-armed ladies.

There remains, perhaps, the pool parlor. So far as I know women do not like pool. But just as soon as they find out that men are happy by themselves in the pool parlor—there is an end to the pool parlor. There ought, I think, to be a law—

Thrilling Romance of a Boston Nurse

Rusty Lies to Holden But He Swears He Will Save Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Starting life over again, Jill Morland, beautiful red-headed nurse in a hospital, is trying to make a home for her brother, Ray. He has been in the State Prison for a year for a crime which she knows he is innocent of. She has been in the State Prison for a year for a crime which she knows he is innocent of. She has been in the State Prison for a year for a crime which she knows he is innocent of.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Holden raised his eyebrows in surprise. "I had thought you would be a little more interested in what you are saying," he began. "Since they will stand trial together, I thought it might be well for me to take over your client's case."

"I don't know that they are to stand trial together," she said. "I suggest you talk it over with your client."

"She will do as I say, and I say 'No.'"

Holden's sudden, cold, hard stare was sure somehow Merkle's mind had been turned to a different girl, who had not been out of his thoughts for many days.

"I don't know," he said. "I am not interested in what you are saying," he began. "I am not interested in what you are saying," he began. "I am not interested in what you are saying," he began.

Edited by MARGARET MATSON

WHAT TO WEAR FOR CHRISTMAS is a feminine question that gets more urgent as the holiday approaches. Too often one's gift buying takes so much time and attention that the clothing problem presents itself too late to be solved. We suggest, therefore, that you go this very moment and look over the things which you might wear on the holidays.

Dinner clothes are more tasteful for Christmas Eve parties than are the very formal variety of evening clothes, for in spite of the fact that much of the exterior piety has been stripped from the occasion, Christmas is a religious holiday. Having Christmas fall on Sunday this year makes that rule even more imperative. On Sunday night, if one desires, she should wear dinner clothes, or in other words, the "Sunday night" type of gown which has sleeves or well-covered shoulders. On Monday, however, one may dress to her heart's content. Monday is merely the day given the business world in order that it might not be deprived of its holiday. Therefore it may be a day of great festivity, and one's most glorious evening gown will not be amiss.

Daytime clothes depend entirely upon the individual situation. Christmas Day is especially a day for giving, of good fellowship and unselfishness—attributes which may be expressed in one's costume as surely as in the gifts one gives. Out-dressing anyone on that day is utterly taboo—or should be. It would be far better to slightly under-dress the occasion than to over-dress. If there is to be a theme in the associations who have been unfortunate in their affairs this year. To flout one's prosperity in the face of any woman who this year cannot afford the lovely things to which she has been accustomed is sheer cruelty, to say the least, and a thing which many of us might well consider on this Christmas Day. What a perfect gift from one woman to another, the dimming of her own glamour in deference to a less fortunate! A gift, however, that must be utterly secret. If the recipient suspects, the whole thing turns instantly to ashes.

On the other hand, if this is to be the occasion upon which you are to be presented to his family, then dress! Dress in your most charming frock, the most becoming and chic. Nothing but the best can possibly suffice! Still be careful not to over-dress the occasion, however—no wear a semi-evening dress in the daytime for example, or too much jewelry, or too obvious makeup, for these are unpardonable sins. Daytime clothes must be daytime length—nine, ten or eleven inches from the floor, unless they are for very late afternoon. Then the semi-evening or long dress may be worn.

The right clothes for Christmas Day, as a rule, are the "dressy" type of daytime clothes. Silks or satins or very sheer wools with flowers and jewels and white gloves if you wish. The same sort of thing which one would wear to a morning wedding or an important luncheon.

Solomon as the Ideal Man

By HELEN ROWLAND

"WHAT MAN has been the greatest inspiration in my life?" asks a woman correspondent—just out of a "dear" story.

"King Solomon," she answers, just as I did. "I like him. There was a man whom I loved and who loved me. He was a man who felt as I must have felt—and might have felt. As a poet, a statesman, a philosopher, a husband and a husband, his name stands unrivaled!"

Ab, if one could find a man of such tact, such brilliancy, such charm, such finesse, such aplomb today, his might make even ONE FIFTY happy! Which, as every woman knows, is a far more difficult feat than making a thousand happy.

According to all records, Solomon was a "snappy dresser" and a man you could be proud of when you took him out to dinner. He didn't have to be blindfolded and backed into his evening clothes. He went "in all GLORY!" And any married woman knows what a comfort THAT is.

His heart may have been "indicated" and as his wife, a woman may have been only "one step away" but to everything he said or did Solomon gave the perfect significance. He devoted to the sentimental heart of a woman.

Solomon, like all men, enjoyed good advice. He gave it all to his son. When he wanted to influence a woman, he sang a song of praise, told her how wonderful she was, and painted her as the ideal wife. And naturally, after that, no wife could disappoint him.

HE KNEW WOMEN! Solomon talks like a poet. You didn't have to compromise his tender notions and make him repeat them after you. You didn't have to beg him to tell you WHY he loved you. You didn't have to demand that she extract a compliment from him. He was no Spinoza around there.

Oh, Solomon was a wonder! He made thousands of women happy—and thus far, nobody has heard that he ever made ANY woman unhappy!

And his "good and long" would have touched the heart of any woman—but, thank heaven, it must be changed, and cannot be crooked! (Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American.)

Best Methods 'AN OLD CHRISTMAS CUSTOM' of Cracker Cookery

By MARTHA LEE

FROM THE DAY after Christmas until late in March housewives from rural districts and over the country will be attending to their state universities. There they will attend the extension lectures which bring to them the latest discoveries about all that is in home cooking. These they will listen to with respectful eagerness, and will be glad to use them in their own homes.

Some of our suggestions are in this issue. If them that year is used. The one thing to remember when the cracker season comes, which is delighted from year to year, there's a delicious new feathering home which is that is prepared without even a passing glance at an oven; there's stuffing for more chicken than is tender and moist, but not to the least heavy. And desserts! Chilled desserts of cream and fruit, which may be made in a bowl, are ideal for winter if they are made just right with cranberry sauce, or a little of them both. There are some other recipes that are sure to be of use to you. I will have a list of them.

Holiday Duck Stuffing

Three cups crumbled whole wheat crackers, 1 cup cut celery, 1 cup chopped parsley, 2 dried apricots (cut in quarters and soaked two hours in just enough water to cover), salt and pepper.

Mix all ingredients together and use as a stuffing for duck.

Coupe Neapolitan

One cup cut pineapple, 1 cup cream, 1/2 cup cut red and green cherries, 1 1/2 cups butter cookies, crushed, 1 1/2 cups butter cookies, crushed, 1 1/2 cups butter cookies, crushed.

Lemon Chiffon Pie

Crush graham crackers, 1 1/2 cups graham crackers, 1 1/2 cups powdered sugar, 1/2 cup butter (melted). Filling: 1 tablespoon gelatin (dissolved in cold water), 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Crush graham crackers and mix with butter and sugar. Press mixture in the corners against sides and bottom of buttered pie pan. Place in refrigerator and allow to stand for several hours. Fill with the following: Soak gelatin in cold water for 10 minutes. Separate egg whites and yolks. Add one-half cup sugar, lemon juice and salt. Beat egg yolks and cook over boiling water until thick and softened gelatin to hot egg mixture. Add grated lemon rind. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff and mix with gelatin. Pour mixture into pie shell. Bake in refrigerator 1 hour. Garnish with whipped cream before serving. Six portions.

Advice on Love

Mother Wans No Girl Rivals

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am 36 years of age and would certainly like to have some young friends. I love dancing shows and any kind of good times. I have a car, but never have a chance to take a girl out. My mother always goes with me and says no girl should have me as long as she lives. I work hard every day, and it is certainly making Jack a bad boy. Please tell me what to do. A SON.

Dear Son: Mothers get spoiled as well as sweethearts, wives and other human creatures. And it seems to me, in your case, that the time has come to keep an understanding with your mother. Tell her you feel you are less than an unnatural sort of life for a mother of 36, and that you propose to make a change, and hope she'll help you to do this peacefully.

Won't Take No for Answer
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: A young man more than rich in the world's goods is in love with me. He is handsome, a gentleman and although I am devoted to him, we could never marry because his parents do not want their son to marry a poor girl. All the time I am with him, he constantly begs and pleads for me to marry him, and he just won't take no for an answer. How can I keep his friendship and still continue to refuse him? A M. M.

Dear L. M.—From the beginning of time rich men have married poor girls and have been very happy. Do you remember Terrence's poem of King Croesus and the girl he made rich? Brace up, cut out the humble suit, and have your wishes to you.

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

SANTA CLAUS is so big and round and jolly that he obscures every other actor in the scene save the children and the inextinguishable sack of gifts. He seems to give, and give alone. But behind his bulk are two others, without whom he says thankfully, and with gay, lacy gratitude, he could not do. The CHRISTMAS SPIRIT, AND THE KIND PUBLIC. The kind

Public and the Fairy of Christmas stand behind him, modest and generous. From the pocket of Public comes a key hand, sometimes with holes in the fingers of his own gloves. Into the hand of the Spirit of Christmas he puts coins and bills, who he surprised how many. And she, in turn, stuffs them into the huge pocket of Santa Claus. For the children's eyes. Behind the Public still stand thousands of his invisible brothers and sisters. Where would the stars on the Christmas tree and in the hearts and eyes of children be if it were not for these Good Ones? Where food and laughter and bright hours? The very angels in the dress of the Christmas Spirit would fade. NELL BRINKLEY.

Hope for Sufferers From Club Foot

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

IT IS A BAD misfortune to be born with a club foot. But children afflicted are no longer afflicted as they used to be. When the condition is recognized in its early stages, cure is possible. In more advanced cases complete inability can be prevented.

Three factors are concerned in the cure of this defect. The first of these is that there is a certain series of certain muscles of the foot.

There is the mechanical theory, the belief that pressure during birth causes the deformity. The third view is that it comes from infantile paralysis or some other infection.

In talipes, which is the medical name for club foot, the foot is dropped in such a manner as to make it resemble a club. In congenital cases, the affliction usually involves both feet.

Congenital club foot should be treated in infancy. Then it is often possible to correct the deformity without an operation. Relief comes from manipulation. The foot is restored to its normal position and kept there by plaster of paris bandages.

Other cases of club foot can be overcome only by operation. In this procedure, the tendon which is shortened and causing the deformity, is cut. It is a simple operation and need cause no alarm.

Let me warn against placing too much faith in the so-called "club foot shoe." It is only of value in mild cases. In most instances it is uncomfortable and does not cure the underlying deformity.

Santa and the Magic Doll

By SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: A dwarf who has stolen all of Santa's keys is imprisoned in a cave by two dolls, Inga and Pinnocchio. They want the dwarf to use his magic to call forth the keys which he stole after the dolls burned his sister, the witch.

CHAPTER XVI
Getting the Keys
Letting the dwarf out of his prison was harder than locking him in. The elves were hundreds of ropes of long grass and made little harnesses for Inga's little donkeys. They then would the long grass ropes about the rock and all the little donkeys pulled hard.

Finally the rock moved a few inches and the dwarf squeezed out as fast as he could. "You're nothing but thieves!" he cried, shaking his fists at Inga and Pinnocchio. He was angry it looked as though he were going to hurt them. So the little elves grabbed him and held him.

Now were going to whistle and call all these tons of yours," said the fairy, "and I will we do well expect you to command them to drop the keys no that these two little dolls can take them back to Santa."

"Drop your keys," ordered the dwarf. The two dolls dropped them all and Inga and Pinnocchio quickly collected them and put them in their coats.

"Now what shall we do to the dwarf asked the fairy. "Maybe he's sorry," suggested Inga. "Let me talk to him."

She walked up to him and said, "What can that be?" asked Santa.

So Pinnocchio and Inga ran out and brought in the dwarf. "I thought maybe you'd let me live. If I give up doing the things my sister, the witch, taught me," said the dwarf to Santa.

"You bet we will," said Santa. "How would you like to work in my blacksmith shop? You have been a blacksmith, haven't you?"

So that's where the dwarf is today. And Santa heads Santa's best blacksmith.

Tomorrow: Santa Reads His Mail

So the dwarf changed his mind and decided to work in blacksmith in Santa's toyshop. Inches and the dwarf squeezed out as fast as he could. "You're nothing but thieves!" he cried, shaking his fists at Inga and Pinnocchio. He was angry it looked as though he were going to hurt them. So the little elves grabbed him and held him.

Jill Lies When Holden Asks of Past

four years ago. Two and a half years, wasn't it? Robbery, arrest—

"I forgot about that."

"I suppose you forgot about being arrested in San Francisco, seven years ago?"

"Yes, I forgot. I was released."

"What about the attack at Atlanta?"

"No."

FOR KIDNAPING

"That was just for kidnaping."

"I suppose the arrest a year ago for kidnaping was just a joke?"

"Yes, it was."

"I told you, Jill answered."

"The man went on to Silvers. She could hear a woman talking there, and once she was sure she heard O'Shea's voice."

"I know the guy standing next to you?" Windy was asked.

"Yes, I know him."

"What about you, Windy?"

"I was in the black before."

"In the black before a detective caught?"

"When you two arrested together last summer on a round-trip to San Francisco?"

"Windy turned to Silvers and grinned at him."

"So we were. I didn't recognize him. Don't believe I ever heard his name. How are you, Silvers?"

"Silvers acknowledged the greeting with a nod."

"What about the dame? Ever seen her before?"

"Downstairs in the Honorable Office?" Windy was prompt in his answer.

"What about you, Silvers?"

"Never saw her before that night."

"Didn't see her up on Wayne street?"

"Never lived with her up there."

UNUSUAL TYPE

"To the men out there in the blackness of the lineup room, the girl under the 'line-up' lights, was an unusual type. Beautiful, refined, quiet, her eyes were fixed in a Monday morning lineal. It was impossible to think of her living in the same apartment with Silvers and Windy. Yet O'Shea seemed to know what he was talking about."

"O'Shea, the darkness room among between a man and a woman, as Jill walked onto the lighted stage the woman grasped O'Shea's arm."

"That's the girl," she cried in suppressed excitement. "That's the one that the dress she was wearing the day she came to rent my apartment."

"O'Shea nodded. The woman was an awkward in her identification he was prone to doubt it. Further more, it did not matter much except that the day of the "line-up" shooting. It might mean much or little. The woman fellow on the other side of O'Shea was trembling to himself."

"I don't care, she's dressed different."

"O'Shea went over to the inspector during the questioning, behind the desk."

"Miss Merditt," the man ordered, "turn sideways and reach up with both hands behind your head. Now take something off a high heel."

RECOGNIZED

"There right, that's the way she was the day I came to the kitchen—me, she didn't see me. I was bringing some extra for it, an old apartment, no electric refrigerator in the building."

"O'Shea nodded. The caretaker had been an aide about this matter of a woman about the place. Jill knew Windy and Silvers. He sensed it at that first meeting, but he couldn't prove it."

Jill could hear the whispering.

By PARIS CABLE FROM BUREAU

PARIS, Dec. 22. Hat fashions in Paris continue to change from week to week. For the first time in a good many years Paris has not for months decided on any one hat as the one to set all other hats at the front of the crowd—a hat which may be worn in numbers on the head, and hats tilted over one ear, any kind of hat they like and still not be out of the running among French styles.

Moulineux, who adds hats to each season's collection of dresses and coats, is one of the designers who goes in for all types of hat. Her latest creation, the Moulineux hat, is brimmed and tailored, for afternoon clothes, it is more fanciful and shows touches of trimming. He insists on neither the straight-across-the-brow position for hats nor for any defined line.

At Bruyere's, hats are likewise varied. One of the successes of the winter season is the Bruyere broad-brimmed hat with a punch at the front of the crown—a hat which may be worn any number of ways. One sees it worn by French women at all angles. Bruyere also continues to do the small cap-like hat, which fits the head closely and is worn pushed off the brow.

In today's sketches are shown a Moulineux model of the cap variety, a dress-up hat of black velvet and worn with a veil whose dotted edges hang around the shoulders. The Bruyere cap in the sketch has ribbon in plaits, tucked above and below the ribbon at the top of the crown. The third model, from Moulineux, is, in line of the new hats of the Robin Hood variety, in brown felt and ribbon.

She felt so faint she was afraid she was going to fall. She leaned heavily against the wall. And she looked so pathetic and so tired, that the detectives among the chattering crowd, who were clustered at O'Shea's head, "had women."

"Now, you'd just expect her to rob a bank or shoot a guy," one of them whispered derisively. There was plenty of derisiveness.

Joyce Certain of Her Love for Basil

Joyce, bounding impulsively from corner to corner in the cab as the impatient driver negotiated turns and applied brakes had forgotten Basil. She thought of Van Alstyne and the promise she had made him. It seemed so impossible that she could even go to him and tell him she loved him. She was so sure that she would never see him again. She was so sure that she would never see him again. She was so sure that she would never see him again.

"What about you, Windy?"

"I was in the black before."

"In the black before a detective caught?"

"When you two arrested together last summer on a round-trip to San Francisco?"

"Windy turned to Silvers and grinned at him."

"So we were. I didn't recognize him. Don't believe I ever heard his name. How are you, Silvers?"

"Silvers acknowledged the greeting with a nod."

"What about the dame? Ever seen her before?"

"Downstairs in the Honorable Office?" Windy was prompt in his answer.

"What about you, Silvers?"

"Never saw her before that night."

"Didn't see her up on Wayne street?"

"Never lived with her up there."

UNUSUAL TYPE

"To the men out there in the blackness of the lineup room, the girl under the 'line-up' lights, was an unusual type. Beautiful, refined, quiet, her eyes were fixed in a Monday morning lineal. It was impossible to think of her living in the same apartment with Silvers and Windy. Yet O'Shea seemed to know what he was talking about."

"O'Shea, the darkness room among between a man and a woman, as Jill walked onto the lighted stage the woman grasped O'Shea's arm."

"That's the girl," she cried in suppressed excitement. "That's the one that the dress she was wearing the day she came to rent my apartment."

"O'Shea nodded. The woman was an awkward in her identification he was prone to doubt it. Further more, it did not matter much except that the day of the "line-up" shooting. It might mean much or little. The woman fellow on the other side of O'Shea was trembling to himself."

"I don't care, she's dressed different."

"O'Shea went over to the inspector during the questioning, behind the desk."

"Miss Merditt," the man ordered, "turn sideways and reach up with both hands behind your head. Now take something off a high heel."

RECOGNIZED

"There right, that's the way she was the day I came to the kitchen—me, she didn't see me. I was bringing some extra for it, an old apartment, no electric refrigerator in the building."

"O'Shea nodded. The caretaker had been an aide about this matter of a woman about the place. Jill knew Windy and Silvers. He sensed it at that first meeting, but he couldn't prove it."

Jill could hear the whispering.

FRESH SELLING PUTS ON DOWNGRADE

New York, Dec. 22.—A flurry of fresh selling put leading issues on the downgrade after a firm opening in New York Stock Exchange trading today. Several issues were lowered close to the bottom resistance levels of the Atlantic trading range.

The list worked a little higher at the opening, but was soon unsettled by selling of the rails. Several issues in various groups were carried down 1 to 3 points.

SELLING IS ABATED
Selling abated in the afternoon, and there were fractional recoveries from the lowest.

New York Central was a conspicuous soft spot, losing nearly 3 points after meeting support from Pacific district. Much miscellaneous issues of 1 to 2 point declines. Chesapeake, American Telephone, American Gas, Liggett & Myers, B. C. Canfield, C. C. Case, International Harvester, Johns Manville, Public Service of N. J., United Aircraft and U. S. Steel common and preferred.

Queens Illinois and U. S. Crown Cork were firm at the start, then reacted, the former losing more than 2 points.

Selling of the steel appeared to be a special cause of concern, but not accounted for by developments in the mills. It is suggested in brokerage quarters that some of the selling may have been covering relatively close to the lower resistance points of the autumn trading range than the industrial.

RAILS FAVORABLE
Such railroad news as has appeared in the past few days has been probably more favorable than otherwise, including today's announcement of an extension for another nine months of the 10 percent wage reduction.

First of course, several executives reported the situation to be satisfactory, and the industry is expected to be restored to the railroad's credit standing.

This week's carloadings statement showed a decline in Pennsylvania and New York Central, but a sharp advance, contrary to the usual seasonal trend.

Brokers' sentiment was mixed. Some had looked for a recovery in the market in response to the House's passage of the beer bill, and the railroads had been agreed, but the stiffening of the list lately only confirmed their misgivings.

The bottling stocks ran into considerable profit territory, but were held by Owens Illinois Glass. The action of the market in the past few days has tended to upset the plans of those speculators looking for a Christmas rally. The railroads were not entirely abandoned, but a holiday must appear might yet be experienced.

Foreign Copper
Is a Shade Easier
New York, Dec. 22 (AP)—Foreign copper was a shade easier today after its recent gains. Sales were reported around 500 to 520 cents a pound against yesterday's range of 510 to 515. There was no change in domestic metal.

Speaking of Depression

How Would You Like to Be a Kung?

A FAMILY OF KUNGS. THEY BUILD NO HOUSES

Some distinguished Americans are distressed because they have been compelled, by the depression, to move from Beacon Street or Park Avenue, New York, or from some fashionable quarter in some other city to quarters less pretentious.

They may find comfort in the picture above, which shows a "Kung" family of the Kahaari Desert. Here you have the father, mother, three children of fair size and, crouching before the mother, hardly visible, a small baby.

Back of them is their "house," but it isn't the least like an apartment on Beacon Street or a private residence on Chicago's Lake Front.

It is not better; you cannot get into it.

The Kungs build no houses, have no homes. They travel about, eating meat if they kill anything; if not, they eat roots. They are nomadic, wandering from place to place, as all of our ancestors once did. When they stop for a night, or a day or two, they get together a pile of roots and brush and live on the side that protects them from the wind, moving about as the wind changes, sleeping always in the open air.

Much to his credit, the head of this family is monogamous, has only one wife. But he feels that ONE is all he can afford, especially when children arrive so rapidly.

All that they have on earth they have with them in this picture. No domestic animals, nothing, but their hands and a spear and possibly a bow and poisoned arrows with which the head of the family hunts.

Millions of human beings have lived in this way for thousands of centuries past.

Victims of our depression might well be thankful for what they have when they consider this Kung family of the Kahaari Desert.

Jurors and Lawyers

Too Often a "Business" Alliance

Dr. A. Warren Stearns charges that Suffolk County grand juries have degenerated into junkies and rackets, that jurors have been drunk when they investigated the State institutions and he recommends, in all seriousness, that the grand jury system be abolished.

The good Dr. Stearns is full of righteous indignation and his statements of fact ought to be considered even if his proposal for the abolition of the jury system is a bit far-fetched.

The faults which may exist are not the faults of the system so much as they are faults of the men who from time to time constitute the system.

Whether it be the case in Boston or not, there are many places in this country where both the grand and petit jury service has deteriorated to the degree of reprehensibility.

If you look over the jury lists, you will find that the same groups of men are chosen for jury service with monotonous and suspicious regularity.

Some of these men are chosen because they can be relied upon to protect the interests of certain lawyers and certain cliques of lawyers. These are political lawyers, who influence the election of certain city clerks. And the city clerks pay for their election by "drawing" for jury service the henchmen of the political lawyers.

This practice may not be widespread. Certainly it should command the investigation of our people who want justice not to be bargained.

The system is all right. The way to perfect it and to protect it from maladministration is not to do away with it entirely, as Dr. Stearns suggests, but to purify the sources from which the men who do jury duty are drawn.

City Club's Ladies

A Forward Movement

The Boston City Club for 26 years has confined itself exclusively to men.

For a quarter of a century they have been the sole beneficiaries of its cultural, social and intellectual pursuits.

Now the order is changed; the atmosphere is softened. Women are admitted to certain of its privileges. They may dine there. They may even sign the checks in their own names.

This is a gain, even if it is not an adventure new or unpleasant to the women searching their handbags for the metal tokens which between unlimited credit in the department stores.

The presence of women will give a new and more neighborly tone to the Boston City Club.

The average man wants an occasional stag night to himself, in the company of male companions, whether it be at the prize-fight, the wrestling match, or seated around a green baize table where discs of red, white and blue are the medium of exchange.

But in the long run, there is no companionship finer than that of his own family. That is why in some of the countries of Europe, for example, the bier garden is so common, where families may visit with each other while enjoying fine music and other entertainment at very moderate cost.

New York Day by Day

Speakeasies

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Gang intimidation, approaching open warfare among the speakeasy restaurants, has the Tenderloin edge.

The underworld whispers that one of the leading entrepreneurs was ordered to withdraw from one highly successful cabaret, and to start a rival place up the street. He did.

The threat was shocked in gangdom's ominous snapper: "If you don't it will be just too bad."

Doubt—but Also Believe!

I'M STRONG for the Younger Generation.

They take me mad enough, as time to chew the gas range, what with their skepticism, their snootiness, their talons and cock-eyed conceits.

And yet I believe in the hope of the world. If we're all to be saved at all, the life will have to do it—

For the young have the courage to defy the status quo.

Yes, I know. Elsie Robinson we older ones have to foot the bill for their defiance. And they want many a good dollar and raise Cain with our comfort. Which is possibly the best thing, that could happen to us; for between their Campaigning and our bill-paying, things do get changed for the better.

What started this? Holmes B. Alexander, Princeton, 1928. Holmes doesn't agree our present world and broadcasts the fact with a note of enthusiasm through Decem'ers "Sermon." Three years ago he left college, an idealist, ready to kick his weight in willicots. Now, the willicots aren't willicots, it's a world and madder young man. But still he believes that one certain thing will set this world right. And what is that? Listen:

"There is a message that ought to be passed on to the rising generation. It is this: that what the country needs is not its idealism but their skepticism. I do not qualify that term. I mean a jarring, tearing, tearing skepticism, the kind that is to dilute somewhat the far-flung gullibility of the masses."

For, as Holmes proceeds to point out, the masses suffer because they hide their heads in the sand of sentimentality and stupidity and along come the young and pull out their tail feathers!

"DOUBT" cries this young man. And all Youth echoes his cry.

Don't take anything at its face value. Not even our most revered most cherished institutions.

Don't accept anything because your father accepted it. His times were his; but your times are your times. The thing that served him may not serve you.

Don't agree to anything because it's supposed to be right. It's right to do it. Nothing is the right thing to do unless it really promotes human health and happiness.

There's the cry of Youth. There's the cry of the young man's aspiring impudence, defiance, laziness, selfishness and extravagance. Not behind EVERY young man's credulity—for some young men are plain average and sane, nothing else but. But there's the cry of the majority of youngsters in nearly every generation, particularly, in this generation.

And yet there's one thing Youth doesn't know, and can only learn through the long, painful grind of experience. It's a great and necessary thing to Doubt. But it's an even greater and more necessary thing to Believe.

Doubt, and Demand something better—but also Believe that we have the makings of something better in our souls and systems. Defy the things that are; but also have faith in the things that can be.
